This restriction on prices, however, did not long remain in force.<sup>1</sup> Of course, the sophist's income depended in large measure on the number of his students. From a few intimations we are enabled to gain some idea of what the size of the classes was; as a rule, they appear, in the case of the more famous sophists, to have been large. Chrestus of Byzantium is said to have had a hundred paying pupils at one time.<sup>2</sup> Libanius, at the beginning of his career, was promised forty pupils if he would set up a school in Constantinople, and, when he actually did so, he gathered more than eighty. Afterward, <sup>1</sup> Until 1890 the value...
